

CHRISTMAS KEATS LECTURE AND DRINKS

 FRIDAY 1 DECEMBER 2023 18:30-20:00
@THE ROYAL SOCIETY OF MEDICINE

ROMANTIC MEMOIRS AND ROMANTIC REMAINS:
with PROFESSOR NICHOLAS ROE

Join us this Christmas at The Royal Society of Medicine for ROMANTIC MEMOIRS AND ROMANTIC REMAINS, with Professor Nicholas Roe.

After a festive drinks reception, the lecture will explore the work of John Keats surrounding beauty and truth, and Keats' subsequent influence in the fields of medicine, humanities, and creative journalism.

Professor Nicholas Roe, Professor of English Literature, St Andrews University, is a Fellow of the British Academy, and Chair of The Keats Foundation. He is the author of numerous critically acclaimed biographies and studies, including John Keats and the Culture of Dissent and Wordsworth and Coleridge: The Radical Years.

The lecture will be followed by an optional dinner.

This is a hybrid event. For in-person/online bookings and more information, visit the RSM website: www.rsm.ac.uk/events/history-of-medicine/2023-24/hss02/

THE SARAH HUGHES TRUST

'Sarah carried this ability to see the world through others' eyes. She was a remarkably talented and versatile journalist.'

Paul Webster, editor of the Observer

Sarah Hughes was a highly respected Guardian and Observer journalist, who died from breast cancer on the 5th April 2021. Sarah's work ranged from hard-hitting and acclaimed overseas reportage, to sport journalism, television and entertainment writing, and lifestyle journalism.

In 2004, she was shortlisted for an Amnesty International award for her reports with photojournalist Kate Holt on abuses by UN peacekeepers in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC).

Her book Holding Tight, Letting Go: My Life, Death And All The Madness In Between, was published in 2022.

The Sarah Hughes Trust Lecture is an annual event held at the Royal Society of Medicine.
